surprising

Seniors accept change. And they indicated this in a midyear survey when asked how much they had changed since their sophomore year.

Many felt they developed realistic attitudes. Kathy Smith tossed away one old wives' tale with: "Seniors aren't as big as I thought." Lori Forsberg, found that "You have to work at things—they don't come easy."

Some seniors' personalities changed. Mike Wiederkehr summed things up with "I'm less critical," while Robin Craft said, "I'm smarter but more confused." Dennis Miller felt "more of an individualist." Perhaps the most surprising changes were those expressed about the school itself. Erin Dage, who was looking forward to leaving Southside as a sophomore, now found herself "just wanting to stay. . ."
