big step

Graduation, although an end to some things, is also a beginning in the life of a student, a beginning for "getting out on your own."

How do seniors feel about their futures?

For many the thought of independence has been exciting. Mike Kelly, for instance, felt that "... it will be a blast."

However, some are less confident and slightly apprehensive. Gary Richardson felt "... scared to death, but I can hack it." Cindy Farnam's cold feet were apparent when she refused to think about it until "... that time rolls around."

For Mike Mitchell, cutting the apron strings held only one reserve: "It's going to be expensive," and for almost every '75 senior "getting out on their own" was a big step out of the ol' routine.
